Must one be conscious, in the philosophical sense, whenever a mental event occurs? For example, is it possible to have a pain that one does not feel? Some people think not; they think that in order for something to be a pain one has to feel it or be aware of it. Similarly, if anything is a thought, then one has to be aware of that of which one is thinking: if there is no consciousness, no awareness, of anything at all, then one is not thinking.
